Biography

Andrey Suvorov

CEO, Adaptive Production Technology (Aprotech), Kaspersky's subsidiary company

An engineering mathematician, Andrey Suvorov holds a master's degree from Warwick Business School (UK), is co-author of an Executive MBA course in cybersecurity for top management, and a recognized expert in innovative technologies and cyberdefense.

Andrey has extensive experience in business development and sales of integrated business and IT solutions for major customers in Russia and the CIS. In 2015, he was appointed head of Kaspersky's business line for critical infrastructure protection, and in 2018 became CEO of a new subsidiary of the company, Adaptive Production Technology (Aprotech). It delivers industrial digital transformation solutions that ensure the reliability of industrial data and help deploy digital services quickly.